LTM symposium today

By AL R. YOUNG
Assistant News Editor

The Language Training Mission Symposium, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. today in 321 ELWC, includes eight presentations summarizing a year of research activities.

Pes. Max L. Pinegar of the LTM will introduce the program at 9 a.m., following which a presentation on "The Effect of Phonetic Reading on Pronunciation" will be given.

Studies presented

From 9:30 to 9:50 a.m., the results of a study on "The Effect of Previous Foreign Language Experience on Performance at the LTM" will be discussed.

The third item on the program concerns "The Use of the Foreign Service Institute Oral Proficiency Exam at the LTM." It will be followed by a review of several language learning methods and their possible inclusion into the new composite LTM language learning program. Three primary methods will be discussed: silent way, community language learning and structured tutoring.

From 10:50 to 11:20 a.m. a presentation will be given on the "Design and Evaluation of a Competency-based, Individualized Approach to Language and Discussions Learning."

Evaluations given

An evaluation of the post-LTM needs of missionaries will be presented at 11:20 a.m. and will be followed with a summary and projections for implementation of the research findings in the new LTM program. The closing session of the symposium will be a question and answer period beginning at 12:10 a.m.

Reports summarized

The material presented in the symposium sessions summarizes the results of 17 research projects conducted by the LTM's research and development staff from September 1974 until September of this year, according to William J. Paddock, research and materials development supervisor.

A summary report on the findings of the projects was submitted in September 1975 to The First Council of the Seventy. It states that both missionaries and mission presidents view the LTM as performing several important training needs. Spiritual preparation and the development of missionary dedication and discipline were seen as the most important of the LTM's training functions. The role of providing a foundation in the mission language and the discussions was also recognized.

Pres. Pinegar explained that when a missionary becomes dedicated to his calling he becomes committed to his calling as two of the primary objectives of the LTM experience.

Extra training

The summary report also pointed out the need for extra-LTM training. Results of a study on missionaries who received post-LTM training compared to those who did not indicated that a post-LTM program was beneficial "not only in terms of their overall language proficiency, but also in the amount and quality of the discussions that they learned," said Paddock.

In order to provide a more individualized approach in the LTM language training method, a system of structured tutoring was instituted.

Task committees were also organized to examine the language and discussion, spiritual preparation, and cultural awareness needs of missionaries.

Pres. Pinegar explained that the idea behind the cultural awareness program at the LTM is to help missionaries identify their own culture and then relate it to the culture of the people with whom they will be working.

He explained that as a missionary focuses on the tasks of spiritual preparation and cultural awareness he will do far better in his work of learning the language and the discussions. "The learning process," he said, "is quickened by the spirit."

Wallace announces candidacy for '76

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. George C. Wallace, billing himself as "the people's choice," officially announced his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday with scorn for his party's leadership and a promise of an active campaign in the 1976 primaries. "It is time we offer that great middle class someone they can vote for and not against. With your help, that is what I shall do during this campaign," the wheelchair-bound Wallace said.

Franco suffers another setback

MADRID, Spain — Francisco Franco suffered a setback Wednesday. He was reported to be bleeding internally, raising the possibility that the sutures from his stomach surgery have come apart.

A medical bulletin, postponed twice during the morning as specialists fought to stem the bleeding, said Franco, 88, was suffering "digestive hemorrhaging that is at this moment controlled."

Soviets deny travel to Nobel winner

MOSCOW — Nuclear physicist Andrei Sakharov said Wednesday that he has been denied permission by Soviet authorities to travel to Oslo to personally receive the Nobel Peace Prize.

Sakharov told reporters immediately after his meeting with a passport official that he was denied permission because he possesses state secrets. The Nobel Committee cited Sakharov, one of the pioneer developers of the Soviet hydrogen bomb, for his vigorous fight on behalf of civil rights in the Soviet Union.

Rumsfeld assures strong defense

He told the Senate Armed Services Committee that he will devote his total energy as secretary to maintaining military strength.

Cultists blamed in cattle mutilations

SALT LAKE CITY — Cultists were responsible for early cattle mutilations reported in Utah, the state veterinarian says, but clumsy copiers and predators probably carried out later stock slashings.

Women engineers to hear of group

The vice president of the national Society of Women Engineers (SWE) will be on campus Friday to discuss the establishment of a student section of SWE at BYU.

Arminia Harness will speak to women students in engineering and all other interested students at 4 p.m. in 381 ESB.

Ruth Morrison, assistant to the dean of the College of Engineering Science and Technology and associate member of SWE, arranged for Mrs. Harness to stop at BYU during her flight from New York to San Francisco.

Mrs. Morrison said that the SWE vice president will probably explain the society and answer questions.

Presently there are 45 women in the various engineering programs at BYU, according to Mrs. Morrison. She said she would like to see a student section of SWE here on campus and that she hoped the meeting would help achieve this goal.

SWE is the professional organization of graduate women engineers and other women with equivalent experience in engineering.

The purpose of the society is to make known the need for women engineers and encourage women to attain high levels of education in this field, she said.

Polygamists' plea

'Stay out of our lives

By DERIN HEAD
Universe Staff Writer

Polygamist Alex Joseph and three of his wives said Wednesday they have a right to live and marry as they choose, and the government has no right to regulate that phase of their lives.

In fact, 39-year-old Joseph is planning on taking another wife next week, and his wives are enthusiastically planning a honeymoon for their husband and his newest bride.

Joseph, who calms he has 12 wives, spoke to the Holladay Rotary Club in Salt Lake City.

The Third District Court for Utah has ruled he get off the federal land he and about 200 followers are occupying in Kane County, Utah. They have been allowed to stay while appealing the case.

Cites rights

"I am not a crackpot — these girls are not crackpots," Joseph said, pointing to Joanie, Judy and Carmen, the three 22-year-old wives who accompanied him. "We're not squatters, we're not lawbreakers," he added.

Backing up his claim, Joseph said homesteading is still technically legal in the United States, said he bought and paid for the helicopter he has been charged with stealing in Arizona, and said, "My political right to be married to whomever I please is not fit to be regulated by the U.S. government." His wives agreed.

Joseph's wives, whom he married since he began practicing polygamy five years ago, range from 17 to 29 years old. They are intelligent and good looking, with several having attained high scholastic achievement. One is a former Miss Kentucky.

Great responsibility

Many people find it surprising that a woman would want to enter into such a relationship, Carmen, his 8th wife, said. "It is even more surprising to find a man who is willing to be involved. The responsibility is overwhelming," she said.

The financial burden of feeding 200 people three times a day, plus the legal disputes Joseph has been involved in which he figures have cost him $50,000 already — is staggering. To help defray the costs, he has made commercials for men's cologne and cosmetics, plus signed contracts for two movies.

Receive Respect

Why would young, attractive, intelligent girls want to marry a 39-year-old who already had several wives?

"We were well accepted on campus," Joanie his sixth wife, said. "We could have married anyone we wanted."

"We had other opportunities, good opportunities," Carmen said. They all went through the dating scene, she said. In fact, she dated a former BYU student body president for three years.

"We married Alex because he gave us a respect, a nobility and a dignity we did not see in the men around us," Carmen said.

"I am happy," Joanie said. "I have ten times the opportunity to do and be things than I did before." I am learning of the business world, but I am also trying to be a good wife and look forward to being another."

"I am happier, healthier and more motivated than I ever have been," said seventh wife, Judy. "My parents can't accept that, they think we are living like that Charles Manson group, doing horrible things."

Unity stressed

But, she explained, "our home is warm, loving, decent and real pure. We are pursuing principles of freedom, dignity and real independence."

"We are constantly working for unity. We are all interested in being one with our husband, and therefore in being one with each other."

Joanie said many people feel the wives would be too jealous and possessive for polygamy. "Monogamy fosters selfishness," she said. "That is not a trait I want to maintain."

"To let my husband benefit from the love of another girl, to let her benefit from his love and to let myself benefit from their relationship is good. I like the idea," she said.

Judy, Joanie and Carmen were roommates at Montana State University, where they met Joseph.

"Even before we met Alex we shared a deep friendship and commitment," Carmen said. When they met him, the idea of marrying him and being sisters forever appealed to them, because they believe they are married for eternity, she said.

Telefund '75 may run out of students' phone numbers

Telefund '75 may run out of phone numbers.

"We don't have the phone numbers of about 5,000 students," said Art McKinlay, president of the Student Development Association. "The reason for this is we get the phone numbers from registration, and when students pre-register they sometimes don't have a Provo number to report," he said.

"We have students in Heritage Halls researching over 4,000 student numbers from phone directories and branch directories, but we can't get them all," he added.

The Telefund total Tuesday night showed BYU students had pledged $60,766 to the Harold B. Lee Library addition.

"We are happy with this subtotal," said McKinlay. "Last year, students pledged $63,000 during the entire Telefund. We've almost matched that figure already, but we have a way to go before we reach our $100,000 goal."

"If we can't call you because we don't have your number, call us," McKinlay urged students.

Students may call the Alumni House, 374-1211, extension 3886, between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., said McKinlay.

Need a computer? Rocket calculators are growing in popularity and declining in price. Some features to look for are plug-in adapter and rechargeable batteries, an easy-to-read display and a memory.

The push buttons should have a detent (click) to prevent unwanted entries. Also, the calculator should indicate when the answer is beyond the limits of the machine.

The International Students Office will host an officer of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service all day today in A-235 ASB, according to Trevor L. Christensen, assistant adviser in the International Students Office.

Henry Clark of the Immigration Service will be on campus to answer questions concerning visas, passports, immigrant status or other questions international students may have, Christensen said.

Hope for NYC affects market

NEW YORK (AP) — A surge of hope for a favorable resolution of New York City's financial problems swept stock prices sharply higher Wednesday in the heaviest trading in nearly four months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 13.70 to 852.25 in its best one-day showing since Oct. 13, when it gained 13.86 points.

Analysts said the rally had its roots in a series of developments Tuesday which suggested that Washington opposition to the idea of federal help for New York City was softening.

Planetarium to show stars during lecture

"The World of Galaxies" will be the subject of public lectures and showings to be presented today in the Summerhays Planetarium atop the Eyring Science Center.

The showings will begin at 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., according to Dr. D. Harold McNamara, BYU professor of physics and astronomy.

Dr. Clark G. Christensen, astronomer and physics professor, will discuss the story of the discovery of remote stellar systems in space and how their physical properties fix the size and extent of the universe.

McNamara said about 60 persons can be seated at one time under the hemispherical structure of the planetarium to view the celestial show on the underside of the dome. A complicated lighting apparatus creates an illusion of the sky at night.

A projector shows the appearance of the constellations, Milky Way, sun, moon and planets in their motions, according to McNamara. He added that comets and other phenomena, visible at various times of the year and in history, can also be seen.

The BYU planetarium, the first ever built in Utah, was constructed in 1957 near the astronomical observatory on the Eyring Science Center.

The facility is used not only for public showings, but also for classroom instruction in astronomy, according to McNamara.

Special showings for Boy Scout troops, tourists, church groups, school children and others can be arranged by contacting the BYU Department of Physics and Astronomy.

ASBYU Women will send yule treats to LDS military

The ASBYU Women's Office Project Uplift, which will mail Christmas cookies to approximately 1,000 LDS service men and women, is scheduled to begin today.

Students who would like to participate in the cookie baking project, which will end Nov. 20, may pick up applications in the Women's Office.

overwhelming. We expected only 500 names, but we have more than 1,200—it's great," said Dianne Curtis, service executive assistant. "We're so excited about this project that we want to give everyone the opportunity to participate."

Miss Curtis said that if any students traveling near Ft. Lewis, Wash.; Ft. Hood, Tex.; and Lackland AFB, Tex.; would like to deliver some of these cookies, they should contact the Women's Office.

The purpose of the project, according to Debbie Hutchings, ASBYU Women's Office vice president, is to let these men and women know they are appreciated. "It is exciting to be in the service of so many," she said.

"In September, the Women's Office sent 43 letters to chaplains and mission presidents asking them for names and addresses of all LDS servicemen and women. The response has been fantastic," she said.

Baked goods should be wrapped for mailing and weigh less than two pounds. A personal letter including a thought, poem or story, and telling a little bit about the sender, should be enclosed, said Miss Hutchings.

NEW YORK (AP) — An Overseas National Airways DC10 jetliner on a charter flight to Germany burst into flames on takeoff at Kennedy Airport Wednesday, but the pilot brought the craft to a halt in time for all 139 persons aboard to escape, officials reported.

It was not immediately known if there were any injuries.

The plane was bound for Frankfurt, and all aboard reportedly were employees of the airline en route to various assignments.

many people in the Provo area. According to Thomas Alexander, assistant director of the center, there is an intrinsic interest in the past in this region because Mormons contributed so much to the settlement of this area of the west.

"People need a sense of where they came from, their background. There is an interest in preserving the past and keeping it for their children," he said.

Alexander said Charles Redd donated $500,000 to the center and for the Lemuel Harrison Redd, Jr., Chair of Western American History, because of his interest in promoting western studies. The center was started in 1972 and is located in 488 HBL.

Leonard J. Arrington, church historian, was the first occupant of the chair and director of the Charles Redd Center.

The center promotes interest in western studies through various programs, said Alexander. These include a lecture series, oral history program, monograph series and fellowship program.

He said the lecture series features American folklore, literature, economic development, geography, anthropology and history. The next lecture is scheduled today by Dr. Jeffrey R. Holland, dean of religious instruction at BYU.

The oral history program includes interviews with people who have done research or worked in the area of western studies. Alexander said these people often go unnoticed, but have participated in western development. "Their story ought to be told," he said.

Alexander said the monograph series consists of essays by authors from varying backgrounds. Five monographs have been published and copies may be purchased through the center. Graduate students are hired through the fellowship program to assist in research, said Alexander. Areas of research "reflect the interdisciplinary nature of the center and are not just history, but include a variety of fields."

Photographs of the UMOG contestants will be displayed in the Wilkinson Center Reception Center Monday through Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. "Votes" for the contestants will be cast by placing money in the large jars in front of the photos, Plocher said.

The winner will be the contestant who collected the greatest amount of contributions. If necessary, runoffs will be held in the same "voting" manner Thursday and Friday, said Plocher.

Plocher noted the ugly man contestants should appear in the photographs in grotesque facial make-up representing weird characters, but cautioned that his office will reject any photograph that it feels is in poor taste. He said poor taste would include such things as making fun of handicapped persons.

Any student is eligible to participate as the ugly man but must be sponsored by a chartered club on campus. All ugliness must be created from facial make-up and not masks, Plocher added.

Organizations which benefit from United Way contributions also will have displays set up next week in the Wilkinson Center step-down lounge, Plocher reported.

Y speech deadline Monday

Monday is the last day to register for the annual Heber J. Grant Oratorical Contest, to be conducted this month, according to Dr. J. LaVar Bateman, chairman.

Contestants may register in the Speech Communication Office, F501 HFAC. All undergraduate students are eligible to participate.

Preliminary rounds will begin Tuesday. Speeches should be of "A faith-promoting nature," original with the speaker, and should run from eight to 10 minutes in length. Speakers should be prepared to submit a manuscript to the judges upon request.

The Grant Oratorical Contest was begun in 1920 by Dr. T. Earl Pardoe, under the sponsorship of President Heber J. Grant, to encourage LDS youth to write and speak about important LDS concepts.

Detailed information and instructions may be obtained at the Speech Communication Office, or by contacting Dr. J. LaVar Bateman, F508 HFAC.

The contest is usually held around Nov. 22, the birthday of President Grant. This year will commemorate the 150th anniversary of his birth. Traditionally, members of the Grant family have been able to honor the finalists in some way, said John Stewart, contest director.

Y wants Guinness record

By TONY WOLLER
Universe Staff Writer

Imagine 2,180 bananas, 292 gallons of ice cream of 31 different flavors, and 2,200 eager, hungry students, and what do you have?

Simple. You have students of the BYU First Stake, on Sept. 26, 1972, setting the official world's record for the largest banana split, as a demonstration of the year's

MIA theme. "The Church has need of every member."

Tables had been set up end to end on the field south of the Smith Fieldhouse. A ton of ice cream was then scooped and placed with bananas in dishes which were placed end to end on the tables. The result was an unbroken chain of banana splits — 1,573 feet long.

When the official inspector from the Guinness Book of World Records had finished the inspection, the 2,200 students rushed forth to eat the one-third mile long dessert, and news commentator Lowell Thomas heralded the news to the world on his nationwide radio broadcast.

Record broken

But since that record-setting autumn evening, BYU's claim to fame in the Guinness Book of World Records has been supplanted by a school back east which broke BYU's record, according to Stephen Boyd, spokesman for Our Gang at the ASBYU Social Office.

To recapture a place for BYU in the Guinness book Our Gang is sponsoring the Record of a Century contest as its contribution to the BYU Centennial. Since Our Gang cannot decide which record BYU ought to break, Boyd said students are urged to submit suggestions.

Entertainment

Boyd said Our Gang is planning its super activity for the first part of March, but the deadline for suggestions is Nov. 19. The student who suggests the chosen activity will win a season pass to productions in the Harris Fines Arts Center, $50 worth of gifts from the bookstore, and $50 worth of food from BYU Food Services.

Others, too

The banana split is not the only world's record set by BYU students, although it did involve the most students. On Nov. 18, 1973, three BYU coeds and one male set the record for treading water — 32 water-logged hours in the Richards P.E. Building Pool.

Our Gang is interested in anything that is very original and will involve a great multitude of students for its new record, said Boyd. "If we can involve all 25,000 students, we'd like to," he said.

The Guinness Book of World Records lists thousands of unusual events, ranging from the most destructive national disaster to the heaviest man ever recorded. Looking through the book, a BYU student might be inspired as to which record the school ought to break.

For example, it might be possible to break the record for the longest sermon. It was set in February of 1955 by Clinton Loy of West Richmond, Wash. With a congregation of eight, and quoting every book in the Bible, Loy preached for 48 hours and 18 minutes.

Marathon dance

Breaking the marathon dance record set by Callum L.

DeVillier and Vonnice Kuchinski might be more difficult, since studies would have to be ignored. Those two young folks danced for 22 weeks and three and a half days — from Dec. 28, 1932 to June 3, 1933. For the last two weeks, the rest allowance was cut from 15 minutes per hour to only three minutes.

Boyd said applications for suggestions are now available on the fourth floor of the Wilkinson Center. The record to be set will be announced Nov. 21 at the varsity preview basketball game.

Benefits in billions

Health, education, social security and welfare expenditures, public and private, in the United States, for the fiscal year ending June 1973, totaled $300 billion, equal to 24.5 per cent of the gross national product.

'Waterloo' weekend movie fare

The Prussian General von Blucher allies with the Duke of Wellington to defeat Napoleon for control of Europe in "Waterloo," the weekend movie.

"Waterloo" will be shown Friday, Saturday and Monday at 6 p.m. and 8:20 p.m. in the Joseph Smith Auditorium. Admission with activity card is 50 cents.

According to information from the ELWC Business Office, which acquired the weekend films, the 1971 picture stars Rod Steiger, Christopher Plummer and Orson Wells.

Russian director Serge Bondarchuk interprets history by ultimately attributing the battle's successful outcome to the ingenious Prussian General von Blucher.

Bondarchuk directed and starred as Pierre in Tolstoy's "War and Peace." His characterization of Steiger as Napoleon in "Waterloo" must have been influenced by Moscow's long winter in "War and Peace." Napoleon in the movie is haunted by the winter of his advancing age. The style and personality comparisons of military leaders in this historical drama is emphasized.

Plummer is the Duke of Wellington, commanding his marching troops through the bloody battle scenes, in professional British aristocratic manner. Napoleon is shown as respecting Wellington, although diametrically opposed; similarities in their roles, responsibilities and attitudes in war provide an identification with each other.

The movie was created from internationally diverse sources.

Library shows Y flashbacks

By LOIS KOHLER
Universe Staff Writer

The "Centennial Flashbacks" display of publications and pictures on the fourth floor of the Harold B. Lee Library tells the story of BYU.

The items for the display come from the library archives. According to Hollis Scott, University archivist, "This is the first time the archives has had a display of this size and significance."

Scott said the display is in the special collections reading room because of security reasons and because of the special atmosphere of the room. "Some items are very rare and have to be kept in a locked case," he said.

The display, arranged by archives staff members and Mike Rogan, library artist, was designed for the Founder's Day and homecoming celebrations. Centennial Flashbacks consists of 12 areas of BYU's history. These include documents and publications, archives, campus, student life, traditions, legend of Temple Hill, South American expedition, women of BYU, faculty life, student publications, Diamond Jubilee in 1950, Semi-Centennial in 1925, and BYU Centennial publications. BYU's deed of trust from 1875 and former BYU President George H. Brimhall's diploma from BY Academy in 1893 are among the items in documents and publications.

The archives section features a list of its resources, including student writings, scrapbooks and museum display items. Aerial photographs of the campus from 1927 and 1961 show the contrast in size and development. The area of student life contains pictures of classes at BYU during the 1900s.

Traditions include pictures of events such as Belle of the Y, student organizations, assemblies and Y-Day. The "Legend of Temple Hill" reflects the belief of some people that President Brigham Young prophesied there would someday be a temple located here.

The faculty life display includes a diary of Pres. George H. Brimhall and an early faculty pay check. Student publications feature literary, scholarly and humorous magazines.

The BYU Centennial publications include "Sounds of a Century," a collection of 55 excerpts from forums and devotionals.

The display may be open until the end of the semester.

Scott, university archivist and Mike Rogan, library artist, organize "Centennial Flashbacks" featured on the fourth floor of the Harold B. Lee Library.

Y conducts self study

By BONNE DAVIS
Universe Staff Writer

BYU is conducting a comprehensive self study of its academic and service departments.

This study is a routine step in the reaccreditation process for the university, according to Dr. Keith Warner, chairman of the steering committee responsible for the study.

A visiting team will also make an evaluation of BYU in the spring as part of the reaccreditation process by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges, he said.

Universities are reaccredited periodically, Warner explained. BYU, which is the second largest university in the northwest region, was last reaccredited in 1966 and will be reviewed again in March 1976, the chairman said.

"A year in advance of the action, the institution is asked to evaluate itself, its strengths and weaknesses and the changes it has experienced since it was last accredited," Warner explained.

One purpose of the study is for the institution to take a look at itself, using the study as a basis to improve the institution, according to L. Robert Webb, one of eight members of the steering committee.

When the study is completed, the steering committee will prepare a comprehensive report and send it to the visiting team, Warner said.

The team, consisting of persons from other institutions of higher learning, will visit the BYU campus March 23-25 to take a look at BYU for themselves, he said.

Accreditation is important to the students because it is more difficult to transfer credit or attend graduate schools if one attends a school which is not accredited, Webb explained.

The BYU administration views this as a completely positive process and welcomes the opportunity for an objective view of the university, Webb said.

The final study should be complete by the end of fall semester, according to Warner.

Jensen bolsters BYU linebacking

By JOY ROSS
Universe Sports Writer

Starting linebacker Jensen suited up this year to become the varsity team's first four-year man in 20 years. "The best outside player in the conference," linebacker Coach Fred Whittingham, Jensen was selected specifically to fill in the BYU defense. Recruited Phil because of a two-year all-star status as a senior at Mont High School in Utah, Jensen is a defensive end and person in the line and get this year's team, Jensen breaks," he says. "Our problem is that we're inexperienced and we can't take advantage of the breaks when we get them."

Looking to the rest of the season, Jensen's immediate goal is to defeat Utah, which has never beaten the Cougars since Jensen's been here.

He was also pleased with last week's win over Utah State, the first Y victory over the Aggies since he came to school here. Jensen made a key interception in the 24-7 fracas.

Despite coaches like Whittingham, whom Jensen calls "the best position coach anyone could ask for," and facilities he feels are top in the WAC, Jensen points out. "In college football it's not too often you win a championship. It's hard to expect to have a winning team year after year."

Married to the former Kathy Kershaw and the father of two, Jensen's immediate future includes coaching as a graduate assistant at BYU next year and then at the high school level. A pro offer, he says, would be nice, but he's not planning on it.

"Football," Jensen explains, "is fun to play but there are more important things such as family and church. It's a matter of keeping things in perspective."

BYU linebacker Phil Jensen zeros in on Arizona quarterback Bruce Hills, ready to tackle him for a loss.

ABA drops Sails, second club in '75

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association dropped the other shoe Tuesday, folding its San Diego franchise in a move towards consolidation and economic stability.

When the league closed the Baltimore Claws three weeks ago, there was strong sentiment among some officials for dropping San Diego as well. That would eliminate costly travel to the West Coast and allow the ABA to go into the season as a compact, eight-team unit.

But Frank Goldberg, owner of the San Diego Sails, was able to keep the team alive — until Tuesday, when the ABA decided to pull up stakes after a fraction more than three seasons in San Diego.

There were indications from some Sails officials that the action was taken despite objections by Goldberg, but a league official said following the day-long meetings, "My feeling is that Goldberg just sat down and made a straight business decision."

"What Commissioner Dave DeBusschere is trying to do is establish some sort of stability," the ABA official explained. "We want to show that we're operating as a business — a sound, sensible business."

Arnold optimistic but not satisfied

Having passed the halfway mark in preseason basketball practice, BYU's new head coach Frank Arnold, is optimistic, but far from satisfied.

The 1975-76 Cougars now have three weeks of preparation behind them and little more than two weeks left before the Nov. 28 opener against the Yugoslavian national team, which has defeated Russian and the U.S. Pan American squad in recent months.

"We're behind, but we're behind on purpose," says Arnold. "We'll be OK by the time our conference games roll around. One national magazine has picked us seventh in the league and there is no way we will be that low."

The former assistant to John Wooden at UCLA says BYU has "good shooters and quick learners," but "our defense is horrendous and the defense awful."

But he adds, "I have never been as happy working with any group of athletes as I have the last three weeks. They are good people who want to pay the price to be winners."

Arnold took his squad to Salt Lake City last weekend for a clinic and scrimmage in front of an alumni group and drew hearty applause when he said, "It's hogwash to think that we aren't quick enough to fast break. We will be an excellent fast break basketball team." The Cougars rotated 12 players in going with a one-guard offense. Arnold indicates the Cougars will use a high-low post setup which amounts to a 1-3-1 offense.

Head Coach Frank Arnold...forecasts cage season

Handling the guard duties for their respective teams in the recent scrimmage were Verry and Vance Law. Both have shown lots of improvement in drills this fall, Arnold said.

Guards unable to participate in the workout were freshman Steve Craig and redshirt Tim Mould is just out of a cast after an ankle sprain.

Jay Cheesman and Troy Jones look like possible starters at center, and Mark Handy, Chris Williams, Reed Noble and transfers Verne Thompson and Terry Gugat are vying for forward positions.

Frishmen Craig Christensen and Mischo Ostarcovic will probably be utilized on the JV team. However, Arnold is still looking for six or seven top players to emerge.

"We have 11 kids who could start right now," says the new coach. "There's a lot of competition and enthusiasm. Whenever we think we have a first team settled, they promptly get beat by the other guys."

BYU fans can meet the Cougars and see a full-scale scrimmage on Nov. 22 at the Varsity Preview Night. Sponsored by the Cougar Club, the activities will feature a clinic-type arrangement and intrasquad scrimmage in place of the frosh-varsity format of years past.

Helping Arnold are assistant coaches Harry Anderson and John McMullen, both from successful high school programs. Anderson spent 10 years at Orem High and was at Utah Technical College in Provo last season.

Students will gobble in mile run

The Turkey Trot, a one-mile cross-country run sponsored by the Intramurals Office, will be held today at 4 p.m.

The first three men and the first woman to cross the finish line will win a turkey. Spots four and five for men win a chicken, and the man with the funniest legs wins a dozen eggs.

Participants should meet no later than 3:45 p.m. in the quad between the Richards Building and the Smith Fieldhouse. The race will be run in any weather, according to Ernie Denney, Intramurals Office manager. It is open to all faculty, staff and full-time students.

Playoffs for men's flag football are in their second week and started this week for coed basketball. The semifinals and final for both tournaments will be the first week of December.

No teams are scheduled to play Thanksgiving week, Denney said. If any soccer teams want to play Tuesday or Wednesday of that week, they should report to 112 RB.

Teams in women's volleyball can now start with four players instead of the six players formerly required. Women's paddleball started Tuesday.

Coed drafts and coed chess begin Dec. 2. Entries close Nov. 28.

BYU's Lae Loo and sister Faelyn from Hawaii reunited and competed in volleyball last weekend.

Reunion sees win, loss, love

The weekend women's volleyball play not only and we all became interested brought success to BYU, but in volleyball.

BYU's Lae Loo and sister Faelyn, from the Hawaii team, reunited and competed with each other for the first time since April.

Lae decided to come to BYU for her senior year, while Faelyn, lacking the money for school in Provo, remained at home this semester fulfilling her general education requirements. She will come to Provo for winter semester.

Over the weekend, the two girls battled each other - Lae's team won the best-three-of-five match, but Lae quickly admits Faelyn is the better player.

"We've been playing been mistaken for each other ever since I can remember," she says. "My always loved the same father used to coach my things."

USC picks coach to replace McKay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California is counting on a former Oregon end, John Robinson, to replace a former Oregon half-back and bring further football glory to the Trojans.

Robinson, 40, whose career nearly parallels that of John McKay despite an intervening decade, will head the Southern Cal football fortunes in 1976 when McKay goes to the professional ranks.

Robinson, a former Southern Cal assistant coach, faces a tough assignment. He replaces a man who has coached more USC victories than any other and gone to the Rose Bowl on eight occasions, winning four.

One big difference is that Robinson is leaving the professional ranks with the Oakland Raiders, to return to the college ranks. McKay is making his first try at the National Football League in coaching the new Tampa franchise that begins next year.

Also, McKay, a halfback, played in the Cotton Bowl with Oregon in 1949 and Robinson, an end, was in the Rose Bowl in 1958, Oregon, with McKay, lost to Baylor, and Oregon, with Robinson, lost to Ohio State.

At USC, Robinson, a somewhat surprise choice, starts his era following a winning coach, McKay, to date has a 126-38-8 record with games against Washington and UCLA remaining. But after a 7-0 start this season, the Trojans lost to both California and Stanford.

NHL players wary of havo

An AP Sports Analysis By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Players in the National Hockey League skate with on the opposition and one on the local civil court Philadelphia Flyers skate part of the time and wear the rest of it.

And amid growing violence in the NHL, violence threatens to give the sport the credibility of roller professional wrestling. Pres. Clarence Campbell is unwilling - or unable - to use the police powers he has.

The Flyers, known as the "Broad Street Bullies" because of their physical game but more so because of on-squad tactics they occasionally employ, are another brouhaha Sunday night in Philadelphia.

Defenceman Jack McIlhargey received an automatic game suspension Monday after leading one of Philadelphia's bench-clearing charges that resulted in a brawl with the Pittsburgh Penguins.

It was the second time this season McIlhargey has charge off the Philadelphia bench. Yet the suspension mere slap on the wrist.

Lenient measures

Campbell has the power to suspend players for periods of time, but he has been banning them from league for life for a particularly heinous act. He has the power to clamp down on teams which violate the league.

Yet he has taken only the most lenient measures. So it was recently when Dan Maloney of the Detroit Wings attacked and administered a concussion to Glennie of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

In the minds of many NHL fans, the assault, blatant they leveled assault charges against Maloney the third time in the NHL's history - and the third history of all pro team sports - that local authority matters into their hands.

Campbell mellowing

As the years pass, Campbell seems to be mellowing. In 1955, Maurice Richard, the superstar on the Canadiens, got into a fight with Boston's Hal Laycoe. The fight was being broken up, Richard punched a man Campbell suspended Richard for the remaining few weeks of the regular season and for the entire playoffs as well.

More recently, though, Campbell's responses have been softer. In 1969, Wayne Maki of St. Louis Green of Boston got into a stick fight in Ottawa that in a skull fracture and brain damage which nearly killed him.

Both Maki and Green were given 30-day suspensions amounting to about 13 games apiece. Green was accused of assault charges in civil court.

Last year, Boston's Dave Forbes clobbered Hennrich of Minnesota with a stick, impairing Boucha's vision. He was tried for assault in Minnesota and, after the jury agreed on a verdict, the cahnges were dropped. Campbell's action: a 10-game suspension.

Foul-ball chaser retires to dog li

KOMORO, Japan (AP) — For four years, El, a male Boxer dog, was the Tsukubaki baseball team's ace ball chaser, snaring foul flies behind home plate with his mouth and pumping his chunky legs to punch foul balls outside the diamond.

"El went after the ball like a pro," says his owner-coach, Masamitsu Sato, a company employee. "But he's getting old and we decided it was time he was retired."

Last week the 8-year-old dog was honored at a ceremony by the Komoro Morning Baseball League, which awarded him a certificate and a large bag of bones.

In his prime, Sato said, El thrilled fans by chasing foul balls like a seasoned ballplayer. "He wasn't afraid to leap into the air, to climb over the fence or scamper about the wet grass."

The Komoro Morning Baseball League, made up of 28 amateur clubs, plays in the morning from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. October before it reports to their factories or open fields in this small city, miles northwest of Tokyo.

One day, Sato noticed that El, called Boxer for which he is eight years ago, interest in the game. "My original plan was to have boys train every day doing road work."

So Sato began to chase only foul balls out of the outfield and to stud diamond. El caught them eventually by striking them with his forepaws on the strike, Sato said.

"Of course," Sato said, "I was a little bit of a chuckle. Sometimes when El got crossed and he'd catch a foul ball, he'd catch it with his mouth and the foul ball would be in his mouth. There was a tangle, usually it coming out on top."

Golfer 'in' with Miller

Golfing with Johnny Miller every week is not unusual for BYU golfer Patti Boucher.

Patti, a freshman from Norato, Calif., played "two or three times a week" last summer with Miller and former BYU golfer Ray Leach. She currently plays for the BYU women's golf team, and has been called one of the school's top female golfers.

BYU women's golf team member Patti Boucher leads the Cougar squad with a handicap of seven.

Met in 1972

"I met John in 1972 when he played and won the Kaiser Golf Tournament in Northern California," Patti recalls. "I carried the leader board for the tournament and my boyfriend was Miller's caddy."

"After the tournament, John started talking about the clubs I used, about the church, and about BYU, and we became good friends," she says. Patti had played No. 1 on her country club's boys' team, and currently leads the BYU women's team with a seven handicap.

Miss Boucher won the Del Monte and Amateur Women's Tournament sponsored by Ross-Atkins associates last summer and seconded in overtime play in the San Francisco Examiner's Junior Tourneys.

In competition this year, Patti has played well, according to Betty Vickers, women's golf coach. In a BYU invitational tournament, she led competitors from four intermountain schools to shoot the low net score with 77 and 79 rounds.

Learned while young

Living on the eighth hole edge of a golf course, Patti first started playing at age eight. "My father taught me to play and I later took lessons from John Geertson, Sr., a pro from the San Francisco area." She now estimates her drive at 180 yards and feels the hardest part of golf is "to play and score consistently well. Concentration is really a key," she says.

"I changed my swing this past summer and have had to really work on my game. It takes time, but my game is coming along."

In the future, Patti feels "it would be real neat to play professional, but I'd like to avoid the blood and guts that sometimes comes with the pro circuit," she adds.

Patti says she would like to see men and women given equal opportunities and funds when the team's strengths are equal, but "personally," she says, "I don't want men and women to be put on an equal basis in sports."

In addition to golf, Patti loves greenery and has over 30 plants decorating hers and several neighbors' rooms in her Helaman Hills dorm. She also collects old golf clubs, and has a 20-year-old McGrover driver given to her by Johnny Miller as well as one of Miller's old putters.

'Mercury' to Miami: trade me

MIAMI (AP) — Mercury Morris, Miami's $100,000-a-year running back, is frustrated again. He says he wants to play for some other National Football League team besides the Dolphins.

Morris is healthy this season after being hampered by injuries over the past few campaigns. He insists he isn't getting the respect his talent deserves.

"I'm being systematically eliminated from the offense," Morris said Sunday after the Dolphins whipped the New York Jets 27-7. "Every time I turn around, I'm coming out of the game."

Morris carried only four times for nine yards while his alternate, Benny Malone, rushed for 60 yards and one touchdown in 13 attempts.

"I'm thankful for the five years under Coach Don Shula. We've got a great team and we're going to the Super Bowl. But I have no choice. I don't plan to be here next year," Morris said. "I want to be traded, hopefully to a team with the second-best offensive line in football. The best one is here."
